

MRS. DODGE WINS GEMS

Jury Returns a Verdict in Favor of the Woman Accused of Smuggling.

The jury in the suit brought by the Government for the forfeiture of the $10,000 worth of diamonds and jewelry owned by Mrs. Phyllis E. Dodge, returned at 11 o'clock this morning.

After forty minutes' deliberation a verdict in Mrs. Dodge's favor was returned. Customs officials seized the jewels when Mrs. Dodge landed here from the steamship St. Paul a year ago.

The case was practically closed yesterday after the testimony of Mrs. Dodge, in which she admitted that her right name was not Dodge. She refused to tell what it really is, and said that she bought the house at 104 West 114th street, where she lives, on money given her by Louis W. Wormser.

MRS. PHYLLIS DODGE.

The case opened this morning with a formal motion by United States Assistant District Attorney Baldwin asking for a verdict on three counts in the information and waiving the one alleging fraudulent intent. The motion was denied by Judge Brown.

Mr. Smith then moved for a direction of a verdict for Mrs. Dodge. This was also denied.

Judge Brown then began his charge to the jury. Just as he commenced Mrs. Dodge entered the court-room and took a seat within the rail. She was the only woman in the room.

Judge Brown said that the substantial question was whether it was a trick or a ruse to bring articles for sale or whether they were bona fide articles of wearing apparel and adornment.

He said there had been testimony to show that one of Mrs. Dodge's weaknesses was her fondness for jewelry.

SON ACCUSES HIS FATHER.

Former Parkhurst Man
Faithless, He Testified.

Howard T. Ball, about twenty-five years old, testified against his father, John W. Ball, in the suit brought by his mother, Elsie Ball, for a divorce before Justice Russell in the Supreme Court to-day.

John W. Ball was an agent for the Society for the Prevention of Crime, of which Dr. Parkhurst is president. In 1910, when it is alleged, he maintained improper relations with Lizzie Kennedy, a cousin, who was also an agent for the Parkhurst society.

Young Ball testified that his parents separated two years ago. Miss Kennedy, he said, had lived at their house, and had shown a disposition to "try to run things."

"Miss Kennedy managed my father, managed me and tried to manage my mother," he said.

Testimony relating to the young man's knowledge of the relations between his father and Miss Kennedy was stricken out, the alleged acts having been condoned by Mrs. Ball.

Of his father's income, young Ball said that he got between $6,000 and $8,000 out of the Parkhurst Society and that he also made money as a lobbyist in Albany.

Ball denied that he had kissed Lizzie Kennedy, or that his relations with her were anything but proper.

KNOCKED OUT BY BUTCHER.

John Clark, Armed with a Cleaver,
Had Started to "Clean Out"
Son's Shop.

John Clark, of 463 Eighth avenue, got into a fight last night, and about 4 o'clock this morning was looking for trouble.

Clark went into the meat market of John Barr, at 230 Second avenue, and was looking for the place where he would get a good fight. He armed himself with a cleaver and a big knife and went in.

The butcher met Clark and the two men fought. Clark was knocked out and laid out for some time.

KIDNAPPER ARRESTED.

Maspeth Police Capture a Man Suspected of Stealing Children.

The police of Maspeth believe they have caught the mysterious kidnapper who tried to steal John Calane's two grandchildren last Tuesday.

The prisoner is Henry Mencken. He was arrested by Roundsman Scelitti and arraigned before Magistrate Connoton at Flushing this morning. He answers the description of the kidnapper given by William Cheney.

Last Tuesday Cheney met a rough-looking man dragging the two little grandchildren of Mr. Calane, a boy and a girl, toward Maurice's woods. The children were crying.

"Where are you going with those children?" asked Mr. Cheney.

"None of your business," said the man. At this Cheney grabbed an empty soda water bottle, which the man carried, and knocked him down. He sprang to his feet and escaped.

Cheney took the two children back to their grandfather.

On the charge of abduction Mencken was held in $1,000 bail and was placed under $500 bonds for having obscene literature in his possession. His case was set down for next Tuesday.

SEEKS HER LOST BOY.

Mrs. Penne Asks The Evening
World to Help Find
Her Son.

Mrs. Sarah Penne, of Far Rockaway, has appealed to The Evening World to help her find her ten-year-old boy, who, she says, was enticed away from her protection June 2.

The boy disappeared just after Mrs. Penne filed papers in a suit for separation from her husband, Arthur. She says she had no idea where he was until Mr. Penne told a reporter that he had sent the boy to Connecticut to get him away from his mother's influence.
